New life, born in devastation ...

A traditional Filipino Christmas lantern, symbolizes the star of Bethlehem, hung at the front of the house.

Sitting here looking out at the beautiful autumn colours brought to life by the afternoon sunshine feels like I live in a different world to the one I see on the news where there are pictures of devastation from the Philippines following their recent storms. As a helicopter flew overhead it picked out pictures of homes devastated, roads impassable, a field filled with row after row of coffins, evidence of mass graves, and the word 'help' mapped out on the ground in white letters in the hope that someone will fly over that way and do something. Unless we have been through it, and I have not, it is impossible to think how it might feel to have lost home, family members and all our possessions, to have to start again from nothing yet without the people we previously shared our lives with. Our hearts go out to such people, and many here will have done what they can by contributing to the emergency fund set up by the DEC. As we prepare for Christmas with family and friends it is hard to think what their Christmas might look like, still amidst devastation and loss, high temperatures, humid weather and recurring heavy storms. As we think of warm hearths, Christmas food and celebrating with friends, we might wonder what place Christmas has for them.

Yet when we pause to consider the Christmas story, Jesus himself entered our world not to a cosy home, but while his parents were travelling. His cradle was a makeshift cattle feed trough, and whether he was born in a stable, a cave or someone's shed, it was roughly carved out for him, making do in a situation which is not ideal, and in uncertain times. It is perhaps not such a big step to imagine Jesus being born into the devastation we see on our screens, a cot pulled out of the rubble placed in whatever shelter can be found, tended to by displaced persons, living from moment to moment. There must be mothers with new-born babies in the midst of all that trouble who are doing just that.

The message of Christmas is that Jesus wants to slip in beside us in the place where we find ourselves now – here in peaceful, beautiful rural Leicestershire or in the wake of the storm in foreign climes, or in the midst of war. He wants to bring God's love and help to us. Sometimes he will use people to bring us that help, other times we find him present with us unexpectedly. He wants to come alongside us wherever we are right now – busy, happy, or hurting, whether we are sick or grieving or whether life is good – to be with us in our troubles and bring God's love and strength to our situations. We pray for the people of the Philippines that they will know his help both directly and through people who seek to bring them aid. But also this Advent and Christmas season, look for God's presence in your life too, pause a moment and let his love touch your soul.

Wishing you peace and joy this holy season. Liz

If you enjoy singing and would like to join our Music Group please call Di Jones on 880741. We sing at the Benefice Service once a month and try to have an hour's practice the week before. That is the only commitment, except for perhaps an extra service at Christmas. You do not need to be able to read music or sing like Katherine Jenkins: a little time given will enrich our Benefice Services and make them into a real celebration.
